Training Frogs
For The Big Time

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Meet Bill Steed, DFP, and the students at Croaker College — as slick and goggle-eyed a group of frogs as you'll ever see.

Steed says he's the world's first Doctor of Frog Psychology, and his school is billed as the world's only "institution of higher learning for frogs."

The college, which charges $50 a year to board and train a frog, has one announced goal — to give the frog the training and confidence it needs to win the Calaveras County frog-jumping contest, which will be held Sunday for the 49th year.

Accused Slayers
Nabbed In Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Two accused killers who tried to pay cash for a $35,000 mobile home have been arrested here, 11 days after three alleged accomplices in the murder of an Indianapolis heiress were caught after paying cash for a $13,000 car.

Howard Willard, 38, and his ex-wife, Marjorie Pollitt, 49, both of Mooresville, Ind., were arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Richard Gormley and ordered held in lieu of $1 million bond each.

They are accused of the murder of grocery store heiress Marjorie Jackson, 65, whose pajama-clad body was found in her fire-charred home on May 7.

Willard and Mrs. Pollitt were believed to have left Indianapolis about the time the murder was discovered.

The pair was arrested at a north Phoenix mobile home park, where they had registered last Sunday as Mr. and Mrs. Robertine Anderson of Ringgold, Ga.

They were driving a 26-foot motor home with Arkansas license plates, which FBI agents said was purchased somewhere between Indiana and Arizona for $21,000 cash. It was when the couple ordered a new motor home in nearby Tempe, and said they would pick it up Friday, that a suspicious

When the first motor home was searched, FBI agents found $170,745 in large bills. The money included stacks and rolls of $100, $50 and $20 bills. Four six-inch stacks of new $100 bills were recovered.

Agents said the money was stuffed in a suitcase, a briefcase and in clothing. They also found a shovel and said it might have been used to bury other money.

Authorities have said between $1.4 million and $3.5 million remains unaccounted for.

Mrs. Jackson kept millions stashed in bags and trash cans in her home. Before her death, she had withdrawn at least $8 million from several banks. Police found $5 million and believed that more than $3 million had been taken.

Police recovered $1.6 million from the three arrested May 10 in Indianapolis. Officers had been alerted in that case by the cash purchase of a new Lincoln, which was later returned because the front of the car was scratched.

The identities of the three and the charges against them are: Manuel Lee Robinson, 29, first-degree murder; Annie Young, 22, possession of stolen property; and John Williams, 38, theft. Williams is free on $1,000 bond.

Wilmington
Youth Dead

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Fairfield School for Boys has asked the Highway Patrol to review the state institution's investigation into the death of a Wilmington youth Friday following a swimming accident at the school.

Robert Rollings, 15, had been in the intensive care unit of Lancaster-Fairfield County Hospital since the accident May 11, the Ohio Youth Commission said.

The commission, which operates the school, said Rollings jumped off a diving board and failed to surface immediately. When he did, he was not breathing but was revived at the pool and taken to a hospital.

An investigation by the school found the recreation leader supervising the youth did not have a life saving certificate contrary to instructions from Fairfield Supt. Ralph Starkey.

In addition, school officials learned from the youth's stepmother that he was an epileptic and had been taking prescribed medication before he was admitted to the school, the commission said.

An autopsy was requested.

Israel Seeks West Bank

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Menachem Begin, who is expected to be Israel's new prime minister, says the West Bank of the Jordan river is an integral part of Israel, setting him on a collision course with the Carter administration.

Begin, whose rightist Likud coalition won Tuesday's parliamentary elections, told the state television Friday the West Bank, captured from Jordan in the 1967 Mideast war, was "an inseparable component of Israeli sovereignty."

The United States has urged Israel to relinquish virtually all the occupied Arab territories — including the West Bank — in exchange for a peace settlement.

President Carter has also expressed support for creation of a "homeland for the Palestinian people" on the West Bank.

The outgoing Labor government agreed to negotiate a partial withdrawal from the West Bank, but planned to ring the territory with military outposts.

Earlier Friday, Begin said he was sending a delegation to Washington next week to explain his views to U.S. politicians and the public.

In the television interview, Begin said the Arabs have always rejected compromise, so there was no point in discussing it.

"We got it into our heads that (compromise) is a right policy," he said. "Now I hope we will begin to explain, after 10 years, that it isn't so, that Judea and Samaria (the West Bank) held by Israel harbors the promise of peace, that if we give it there will be no chance for peace."

When the interviewer said such a policy was "not acceptable to Washington," Begin replied: "Did any Israeli representative ever tell a single senator that Judea and Samaria should, by law, by justice, by right, be an inseparable part of Israeli sovereignty?"

The Likud has long insisted that the West Bank be annexed into Israel, but some observers thought Begin might moderate his position now that it appears certain he will head the government after nearly 29 years in opposition.

But on Thursday, Begin visited Kaddum, an unauthorized settlement put up by Jewish squatters on the West Bank, and proclaimed the territory the "land of liberated Israel." He traced the claim to the Old Testament, which identifies ancient Judea and Samaria as part of Israel.

The United States has referred to such settlements as "obstacles to peace," but Begin said there would be more of them in the future.

Two Groups

To mark the end of National Handicapped Awareness Week, two local groups are mentioned which are geared towards these children and adults.

Special children is for parents and other interested persons concerned with children with mental and physical handicaps.

Mainly, the group deals with children with learning disabilities, such as autistic behavior, epilepsy, or other slow learning handicaps.

The seven aspects of the autistic syndrome are an early age of onset, the inability to relate, language retardation inclined to impair comprehension, ritualistic compulsive behavior, spontaneous motion, abnormal perceptual response to sensory stimuli and most normally an area in which the child is normal or excels.

It is estimated that there are 17 people in the county with the autistic syndrome. The United States prevalence is 4 per cent.

This group meets the second Monday of each month, 7:30 p.m. at the County School Superintendent's office, 139 W. Franklin St.

The second group, known as the Coalition for the Handicapped in Pickaway County, deals mainly with the physically handicapped.

The group is comprised of concerned adults and children who are handicapped as well as friends and relatives of physically handicapped.

The coalition's main purpose is to make Pickaway County more accessible to the handicapped, to increase the social and learning functions, and to promote the understanding of the handicapped and their problems.

It meets the fourth Monday of each month. This Monday, the group is meeting 7:30 p.m. at the Trinity Lutheran Parish House, 137 E. Mound St.

In Pickaway County, there are an estimated 88 people with epilepsy. In the U.S., prevalence is two per cent of the population.

For all ages and degrees of deafness, 61 people are affected in the county. Total population prevalence is 1.4 per cent.

SALT Progress Report Made

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance announced today he had reached a "general agreement" with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on a "common framework of a new treaty to limit nuclear weapons."

Summing up his three days of talks with Gromyko, Vance told reporters the two superpowers devised a three-tiered approach that may impose temporary restraints on the U.S. cruise missile and the Soviet Backfire bomber.

The status of those two weapons has been the key issue blocking a new treaty — SALT II — to replace the five-year old SALT I agreement which expires Oct. 3.

The agreement would also include cutbacks in both nations' weapons arsenals and a commitment to begin negotiating further reductions once the new treaty expires in 1985.

Vance emphasized that "substantial differences remain between the two sides on a number of issues" before a final treaty can be drafted and submitted to the U.S. Senate.

He said further negotiations will be continued in Geneva, at the ambassadorial level in Washington and Moscow, and at another meeting with Gromyko at a time and place to be decided.

Vance said the framework accepted by the two sides included a treaty, a three-year "protocol," and a "statement of conduct" that would pave the way for negotiations on a third weapons agreement.

"In our judgment, the talks have been both necessary, useful and also constructive," Vance said. "Progress has been made. We have reached general agreement on a common framework for the SALT II agreement."

On the Middle East, the other topic of discussion, Vance said both sides agreed the Geneva peace conference should be reconvened in the fall and would "work to that end."

He said American and Soviet diplomats would hold monthly meetings to keep track of developments "as we continue our discussions with the parties."

But the communique noted "the importance of careful preparation before the conference meets." The statement was seen as a Soviet concession to the Carter administration, which has stressed the need for advance planning to insure the success of the conference.

Carter said last month it would be better to delay the conference if prospects for an agreement seemed poor. The Soviets have pressed for an immediate resumption of the talks.

On arms control, the communique did not spell out what form the two sides expected the new treaty to take. However, a U.S. official described it as a "blending" of the two U.S. proposals rejected by Moscow last March and a Soviet offer.

Antibusing Group
Planning Protest

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Against a background of declining furor at home, about 20 members of a Louisville antibusing group have set out for Boston to stage a "tea party" that may — or may not — include dumping gasoline into Boston Harbor.

Whatever they are planning to do, they weren't giving details as they left Louisville Friday.

"We don't want a lot of police and people out there at Boston Harbor," said Bob DePrez, who organized the trip. "Let's just say this: it's going to be a ceremony."

Last month, DePrez said he and several associates were thinking of dumping 1,000 gallons of gasoline into the Atlantic to dramatize "this terrible waste of gas and energy caused by busing."

Asked about that Friday, he refused to say what the group will pour into the water.

"But we will put something in," he said. "The important thing is, we're going to be there. It will symbolize all the spilling of blood that is caused by forced busing."

Louisville schools were ordered desegregated two years ago — about the same time as Boston's — and initially there was vociferous, sometimes violent, opposition in both cities.

This year, although Louisville's antibusing movement has staged several protests, the number of protesters has dwindled with each march. There also has been no violence this year like that which greeted the opening of schools after busing began in September 1975.

Boston, too, has been far quieter than it was two years ago.

Last fall, tear gas was used several times to break up antibusing demonstrations in Louisville, but police were dealing then with small crowds — not the thousands they faced in 1975.

Laundromat
Use Solar
Heating

MOUNT STERLING, Ohio (AP) — Heat from the sun has always been a nice way to dry clothes. Now it's being used to wash them as well.

A laundromat in this central Ohio village of 1,500 is installing a solar heating system, and expects that it will heat most of the water in the store's washing machines.

"It's the only way to go with utility prices going up the way they are," said Gerald Goings, owner of the Duds in Suds laundromat.

Straley, a member of the Mount Sterling Village Council, says he hopes the installation means that "solar power may get going in Mount Sterling."

The system, being installed by a Washington Court House firm, works with 10 solar reflectors covering 400 square feet which are bolted to the store roof, facing south.

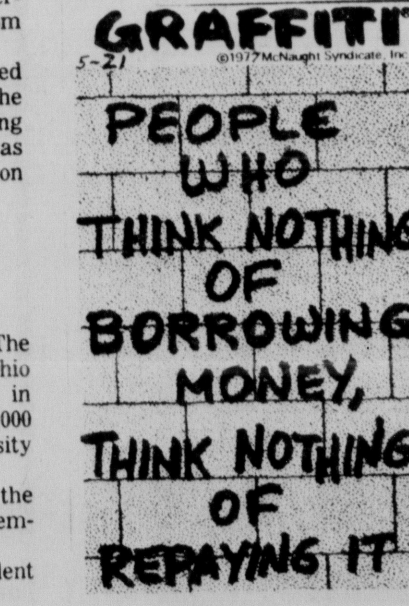

Water will circulate in the panels, absorbing heat to a temperature of 120 degrees on a sunny, summer day. That would provide all of the heating needs for the washing machines.

On cloudy, cooler days, natural gas will augment the solar system to provide sufficient heat.

"A person just has to beat these high bills some way," says Straley, who plans a similar heating system for his house.

He says installation of the panels will run about $20,000.

"But I will make it back in just a few years with my saving on gas," he added. "I will save $200 per month just on present prices. And those are supposed to double within a year, so I'll make my money back twice as fast."

It was a tongue-in-cheek story — the kind of tall tale that flourished in the Old West. When you listen to Steed, you might think it's spirit still lives.

SALT Progress Report Made

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance announced today he had reached a "general agreement" with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on a "common framework of a new treaty to limit nuclear weapons."

Summing up his three days of talks with Gromyko, Vance told reporters the two superpowers devised a three-tiered approach that may impose temporary restraints on the U.S. cruise missile and the Soviet Backfire bomber.

The status of those two weapons has been the key issue blocking a new treaty — SALT II — to replace the five-year old SALT I agreement which expires Oct. 3.

The agreement would also include cutbacks in both nations' weapons arsenals and a commitment to begin negotiating further reductions once the new treaty expires in 1985.

Vance emphasized that "substantial differences remain between the two sides on a number of issues" before a final treaty can be drafted and submitted to the U.S. Senate.

He said further negotiations will be continued in Geneva, at the ambassadorial level in Washington and Moscow, and at another meeting with Gromyko at a time and place to be decided.

Vance said the framework accepted by the two sides included a treaty, a three-year "protocol," and a "statement of conduct" that would pave the way for negotiations on a third weapons agreement.

"In our judgment, the talks have been both necessary, useful and also constructive," Vance said. "Progress has been made. We have reached general agreement on a common framework for the SALT II agreement."

On the Middle East, the other topic of discussion, Vance said both sides agreed the Geneva peace conference should be reconvened in the fall and would "work to that end."

He said American and Soviet diplomats would hold monthly meetings to keep track of developments "as we continue our discussions with the parties."

But the communique noted "the importance of careful preparation before the conference meets." The statement was seen as a Soviet concession to the Carter administration, which has stressed the need for advance planning to insure the success of the conference.

Carter said last month it would be better to delay the conference if prospects for an agreement seemed poor. The Soviets have pressed for an immediate resumption of the talks.

On arms control, the communique did not spell out what form the two sides expected the new treaty to take. However, a U.S. official described it as a "blending" of the two U.S. proposals rejected by Moscow last March and a Soviet offer.

Laundromat Use Solar Heating

MOUNT STERLING, Ohio (AP) — Heat from the sun has always been a nice way to dry clothes. Now it's being used to wash them as well.

A laundromat in this central Ohio village of 1,500 is installing a solar heating system, and expects that it will heat most of the water in the store's washing machines.

"It's the only way to go with utility prices going up the way they are," said Gerald Straley, owner of the Duds in Suda Laundromat.

Straley, a member of the Mount Sterling Village Council, says he hopes the installation means that "solar power may get going in Mount Sterling."

The system, being installed by a Washington Court House firm, works with 10 solar reflectors covering 400 square feet which are bolted to the store roof, facing south.

Water will circulate in the panels, absorbing heat to a temperature of 120 degrees on a sunny, summer day. That would provide all of the heating needs for the washing machines.

On cloudy, cooler days, natural gas will augment the solar system to provide sufficient heat.

"A person just has to beat these high bills some way," says Straley, who plans a similar heating system for his house.

He says installation of the panels will run about $20,000.

"But I will make it back in just a few years with my saving on gas," he added. "I will save $200 per month just on present prices. And those are supposed to double within a year, so I'll make my money back twice as fast."

Antibusing Group Planning Protest

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Against a background of declining furor at home, about 20 members of a Louisville antibusing group have set out for Boston to stage a "tea party" that may — or may not — include dumping gasoline into Boston Harbor.

Whatever they are planning to do, they weren't giving details as they left Louisville Friday.

"We don't want a lot of police and people out there at Boston Harbor," said Bob DePrez, who organized the trip. "Let's just say this: it's going to be a ceremony."

Bob Hope Buying Bells For Church

EAST PALESTINE, Ohio (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope hasn't forgotten this tiny northern Columbiana County city where he got his start.

When Hope decided to trade boxing gloves for the stage, his first show business job was in a small theater here.

The pastor of the Church of Christ, the Rev. Daniel J. Davis, reminded Hope of his community ties during the entertainer's performance at the state fair in Columbus last year.

A series of letters were exchanged and last week, Hope agreed to purchase bells for the new church.

In his letter, Hope said: "I hope it wakes a lot of people and rings a lot of happiness in East Palestine, my original testing ground."

Seven People Hurt In Crashes

INVESTIGATE CRASH — Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Jim Bingham and off-duty Deputy R. L. Phillips take measurements at the scene of the Route 56 auto accident Friday which injured four Mt. Sterling teenagers.

Seven people were injured in three auto accidents investigated Friday on Pickaway County highways.

Four Mt. Sterling teens suffered minor injuries when their car went off the left side of Route 56 and rolled to its top.

The accident, investigated by Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Jim Bingham, occurred 2:45 p.m. Friday on Route 56, three-tenths of a mile east of Cochran Road.

Driver of the car was Thomas A. Brigner, 17, Mt. Sterling, who suffered contusions and abrasions to his left arm, shoulder, and thigh.

Passengers and their injuries were Charles B. Rivers, 13, Mt. Sterling, contusions and abrasions to his right forearm; Bradley A. Rivers, 13, Mt. Sterling, contusion to his left leg; and Jamie M. Brigner, 14, Mt. Sterling, back strain.

The four youths were treated at Berger Hospital and later released.

According to the report, they were traveling west on Route 56 and were attempting to overtake and pass another westbound car when Brigner lost control of his vehicle.

The car went off the left side for 137 feet before returning to the paved surface. However, Brigner lost control again, causing the car to slide sideways on the road for 152 feet.

It went off the left side 228 feet and rolled over two and a half times before coming to rest on its top.

Three of the teens were thrown from the vehicle, Deputy Bingham said.

Millars Scott, 46, 316 Watt St., suffered an injury to his left hand in a 10:19 p.m. accident on the Walnut Creek Pike, eight-tenths of a mile north of the Bell Station Road.

According to the report of Deputy Nick Franklin, Scott was driving north when he attempted to retrieve a dropped cigarette.

His car went off the left side and crashed into a tree.

He was charged with failing to drive on the right half of the road.

Two pedestrians were injured when they were struck by a car 11:57 a.m. Friday at the intersection of E. Ohio St. and S. Court St., according to Circleville Police Ptl. Jim Ford.

Brenda Burris, 720 S. Court St., and her four-year-old daughter, Tammy, were struck by a car driven by James E. Newland, 77, 117 Dunmore Road. Newland was charged with failing to yield the right of way to a pedestrian.

New Gasoline Dealer Chain Opens Stations

Care Service Centers, a chain of independent gasoline stations, went into operation around the state recently, including a station in Circleville on East Main Street.

The 33 stations around the state are part of a new dealer-owned marketing company called Refiners Outlet Co. The dealers share ownership in the marketing company, but own their stations. The one in Circleville is owned by Rycar Oil Inc. Roger Koch is the incorporator.

The marketing company was formed by Sohio station owners and operators when the stations became available as part of a divestiture program in settlement of an antitrust suit filed against Sohio.

Refiners Outlet Co. acts as a buying group and each dealer-owner is a shareholder in Refiners. The stations will be supplied with gasoline by Sohio under a 4-year agreement as part of the antitrust divestiture agreement.

Many gasoline chains are not doing mechanical work anymore and are only selling gasoline. It is the intention of Care Service Centers to be full car servicing facilities.

Care Service will purchase auto equipment such as tires, batteries and accessories from other auto dealer supply companies.

PVMH Expands Program For Children, Families

The Paint Valley Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board is developing a children's treatment program consisting of three service components — outpatient counseling, residential treatment, and emergency residential treatment. This program is being developed as a result of the closure of the Nelsonville Children's Treatment Center 16 months ago.

The residential component of the program is planned for the Greenfield area and is presently being developed through the State Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation. The opening date is projected for the first part of 1978.

The outreach counseling service went into effect this month when Jeffrey Luftman, director of the program, announced the hiring of Jo Ann Liesenberg and Timothy Bennati.

College, New Paltz, New York. She was formerly a clinical psychologist at Monticello Mental Health Clinic, Monticello, New York.

She has had varied and extensive background experience in family counseling, crisis intervention, and counseling children of various ages who were experiencing social, behavioral, and emotional difficulties.

All referrals and appointments should be made to the local mental health clinic, 477-1200 and directed to Miss Liesenberg, Outreach Worker.

Bennati will be the Outreach Worker for Pike and Highland Counties, working out of the mental health clinics. Luftman will be working in the Ross County area.

Forecast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mid summerlike warmth will continue in Ohio through the weekend.

Nearly stationary high pressure over the southeastern United States will cause sunny skies, southerly breezes and high temperatures close to 90 degrees today.

Little change will take place in the current weather pattern Sunday except that increasing humidity and the slow approach of a frontal system from the west may cause some widely scattered afternoon thundershowers.

Several Ohio cities recorded 90 degree temperatures Friday. The high of 90 at Findlay set a new record for May 20 and Dayton's high of 90 tied the record. The 90 degree reading at the Akron-Canton airport was the warmest in that northern Ohio city since August 24, 1975. Most other high temperatures were in the upper 80s except along the Lake Erie shoreline where the cool lake kept temperatures about 10 degrees cooler.

OHIO

Clear and mild tonight. Low 60 to 65. Mostly sunny and continued warm Sunday with a chance of afternoon thundershowers. High 85 to 90.

Miss Liesenberg, age 27, will be the counselor for Fayette and Pickaway Counties, working out of the mental health clinics 20 hours per week. She holds a Bachelor's Degree in Psychology from Harper College, Binghamton, New York, and a Master's Degree in Clinical Psychology from State University

Elisa Frosini and Amy Hovermale received their certificates signed by the President of the United States along with emblem patches for completing 85 per cent of each of the six fitness tests in the AAHPER (American Alliance for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.) These results are compared with children of the same sex and age across the entire United States. Elisa and Amy also received a merit certificate from the "Y" and will be receiving a bar patch for completion of a second passing test. These awards along with many others were presented at the Pickaway County Family YMCA Annual Awards Banquet held in the Lutheran Parish Hall Thursday.

CETA Funds Available For Work Projects

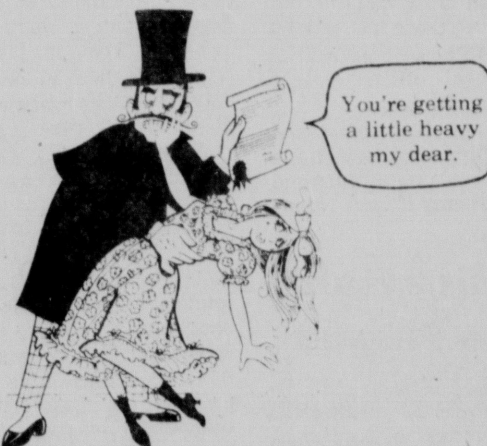

Public Service Employment legislation recently signed by President Carter has made CETA funds available to groups for special works projects according to Greg Bigam, federal coordinator for Pickaway County Commissioners. The funds will enable county commissioners to continue their CETA programs (30 jobs) until Sept. 30, 1978. Jobs for special work projects may be submitted to the Columbus CETA headquarters from local agencies. According to Bigam this is a new concept of CETA and is not tied to the PICCA or county programs. Any unit of government, government agency or department, educational institution, community agency or non profit private organization may fill out an application to find some sort of work project. Funding is for labor only and a project cannot be funded for more than $100,000. Projects shall not last for more than one year. Projects should be designed to include a maximum number of participants. At least five is suggested. Applications must be in by May 27. Bigam at the commissioners office in the court house or Carol Sammlwood at PICCA office in the Memorial Hall have applications and additional information. Participants hired under these projects will have to meet certain unemployment and income guidelines, Bigam emphasized.

YMCA Awards Presented

Elisa Frosini and Amy Hovermale received their certificates signed by the President of the United States along with emblem patches for completing 85 per cent of each of the six fitness tests in the AAHPER (American Alliance for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.) These results are compared with children of the same sex and age across the entire United States. Elisa and Amy also received a merit certificate from the "Y" and will be receiving a bar patch for completion of a second passing test. These awards along with many others were

CETA Funds Available For Work Projects

Public Service Employment legislation recently signed by President Carter has made CETA funds available to groups for special works projects according to Greg Bigam, federal coordinator for Pickaway County Commissioners.

The funds will enable county commissioners to continue their CETA programs (30 jobs) until Sept. 30, 1978.

Jobs for special work projects may be submitted to the Columbus CETA headquarters from local agencies. According to Bigam this is a new concept of CETA and is not tied to the PICCA or county programs.

Any unit or government, government agency or department, educational institution, community agency or non profit private organization may fill out an application to find some sort of work project.

Funding is for labor only and a project cannot be funded for more than $100,000. Projects shall not last for more than one year. Projects should be designed to include a maximum number of participants. At least five is suggested.

Applications must be in by May 27. Bigam at the commissioners office in the court house or Carol Samllwood at PICCA office in the Memorial Hall have applications and additional information.

Participants hired under these projects will have to meet certain unemployment and income guidelines, Bigam emphasized.

Rescinding Oil Hike

It now appears that the gamble by Saudia Arabia and the United Arab Emirates to buck the two-stage, 15 per cent price increase for oil voted last December by the other 11 OPEC members, is paying off. The 11 members of the oil cartel had agreed to raise oil prices by 10 per cent last Jan. 1 and an additional five per cent on July 1. Saudia Arabia and the UAE raised their prices five per cent on Jan. 1, with the announcement there would be no further increases this year. In addition to the consternation two-tier pricing caused within OPEC ranks, oil production increasingly has been higher than demand among the 11 countries committed to two-stage increases this year. Getting together with the two largest producers within the conglomerate seemed the wise move to make. It was a relatively small saving, compared with price increases of the past. But in the volatile oil market of today, every bit helps.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The expectations of a balanced budget by 1981 are based in part on the administration's assumption that business capital outlays will grow at a rate of 9 or 10 per cent a year for four or five years. A casual reader — or to be blunt, the disinterested ordinary citizen — might not pay too much attention to that assumption. He or she probably wants a balanced budget, but not the explanation. But in this case the assumption in itself is interesting. Except for the 1962-1966 period, nobody seems able to recall when such a level of business spending was achieved before. Even Charles L. Schultze, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, concedes the assumption "is an ambitious objective." Not overly ambitious, he said in answer to a newsman's question. Just ambitious, he said. It is probably based also in a good deal of hope. Nobody can say that the next few years won't turn out to be as economically vigorous as were those years in the 1960s, when we didn't have so many environmental and other considerations thwarting capital spending. The next few years might indeed produce a renewal of confidence by business investors in plants and equipment. But the signs aren't that clear right now. For the past two years capital commitments haven't been anywhere near 9 to 10 per cent. Business people have been uncertain, unwilling to design expansion plans. They complain about the lack of incentives. Month after month the statistics watchers waited for the latest indicators, and the figures almost always disappointed. The ruffle of business spending just wasn't heard. Perhaps a few rat-a-tats, but little more. But now, Schultze seemed to say in an address this week to the New York Financial Writers, business is ready to go on a spending parade, and a very long one too. He might be right; he might be wrong. Nobody can say. What is obvious is that spending cannot be postponed forever, and that some industries seem finally to be making their moves. A McGraw-Hill survey of spending plans suggests a hefty 18 per cent rise — inflation included — this year. While the survey findings were greeted with joy by those who had waited so long for good news, they were as quickly criticized as exaggerated by those who have seen too many false signals over the past two years. Even Business Week, a McGraw-Hill publication, commented that "all through the present recovery, companies have shown a perverse tendency to spend far less than they plan — reversing the usual recovery pattern in which actual outlays often exceed earlier projections." Even when discounted for inflation, an 18 per cent rise would be better than the level sought by Schultze. But then the McGraw-Hill people blow a sour note: next year they expect a rise of only 5 per cent — zero with inflation eliminated. At this point in the economic cycle, very few economists are willing to project such a strong level of capital outlays over so prolonged a period as is the administration. Schultze, and presumably other economic advisers in the administration, then use this rate of growth in outlays to set some of the more important targets, such as the level of employment. And the economic projections of which the capital spending expectations are a part, said Schultze in his talk here, "provides the basis for developing our budgetary plans for 1978 and beyond." And "beyond" includes a balanced budget by 1981.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I just returned home from the hospital after having had a hysterectomy operation. One day, my chart was left on the bed by mistake. I did what anybody else would have done, and looked through it. I was caught in the act by the resident physician. He promptly proceeded to take my head off. He made me feel awful. Is this such a terrible thing to do?

— Mrs. C.Y., III.

Dear Mrs. Y.: There seems to be an ongoing battle as to the rights of patients to see their own charts. Some physicians and consumer groups insist that the chart and the material in it belong to the patient and therefore should be inspected by the patient. Others take the opposite attitude. They feel that hospital records are privileged and confidential material, for inspection by doctors and nurses only.

I understand completely the temptation to read your chart. I do not support the right or the bad judgment of the resident to "take your head off" simply because you could not resist the temptation. With my own patients in the hospital I have no fixed rule. There are some patients who can accept every aspect of their illness, the results of blood examinations and X-rays and clearly understand their meanings. There are others who become terrorized by the sight of an electrocardiogram reading or by the unimportant notations on their charts. For them, it serves no health benefit to acquaint them with every detail on their charts.

Is a hearing aid more effective if it fits behind the ear than if it's worn inside the ear or in eyeglasses?

— Mrs. G.T., W.Va.

Dear Mrs. T.: A great many people make the mistake of purchasing a hearing aid because it is tiny, hidden and inconspicuous. This concession to vanity brings disappointment if it is found that it just doesn't help their hearing. A hearing aid is effective when it increases serviceable hearing in all social circumstances. That is the most important aspect of the purchase of a hearing aid. Sometimes one that is very tiny may not be as effective as a larger one. Those who are seeking to increase their ability to hear must not succumb to a sales pitch of "tiny" and "inconspicuous." Sometimes they do the job. But sometimes a larger type will prove more helpful.

Plan Meet On UAW Reaffiliation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The United Auto Workers union has made tentative plans for a special fall convention to decide whether the 1.4-million member organization should reaffiliate with the AFL-CIO. But opposition to a re-merger with the labor federation runs high within the nation's largest industrial union, and UAW leaders say they won't assemble a convention unless anti-reaffiliation attitudes abate.

Approval of the special conclave came Thursday as 6,000 delegates to the UAW's national convention concluded their five-day meeting. That issue was the most controversial to come before the convention, which otherwise was a model of unity and harmony.

The late UAW president Walter Reuther led his union out of the AFL-CIO in 1968 because of personal and political differences with federation president George Meany, whom Reuther regarded as too conservative on domestic and foreign policies.

In the past year, however, both Leonard Woodcock, just retired UAW president, and his newly elected successor, Douglas Fraser, have pushed for reaffiliation in the name of a united American labor front.

UAW officials — those on the international executive board as well as those holding local office — are sharply divided on the issue.

Local leaders say they prize the political independence they have enjoyed during the past nine years and fear a loss of autonomy if they return to the AFL-CIO.

Dragonflies Fight Mosquito Plague

SCARBOROUGH, Maine (AP) — Scarborough Downs is putting its money on dragonflies to beat back pesky mosquitoes that torment railbirds at the harness racing track just south of Portland.

Five thousand immature dragonflies were released this week around the track and the nearby swampy lowlands.

The southern Maine towns of Ogunquit and Wells successfully used dragonflies, rather than pesticides, last year to fight mosquitoes.

Roger D. Smith, Scarborough Downs general manager, said he liked the idea and ordered some dragonflies from a biological supply company.

The immature dragonfly or nymph can eat about 3,000 mosquito larvae an hour, while a adult dragonfly can gobble up twice its weight in mosquitoes an hour.

Ohio's pioneer farmer was fortunate in that he could pole his flatboat up the Muskingum, the Scioto, the Hocking, or the Miami, and reap a good harvest from the fertile bottom lands, then send out his produce in the same manner.—AP

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE: While The Herald encourages open comments from its readers, the opinions expressed are not necessarily those of the management. Letters to the editor must be signed and should be of 300 words or less.

Dear Editor: I am writing to inform the public of the urgent need for Girl Scout leaders and co-leaders.

I am a Brownie leader in Ashville and I can tell you from experience that if you have the time, being involved in Scouting is a very rewarding experience. The girls in Scouting love it. The willingness to learn is fantastic. I have three Brownies who will "fly-up" to juniors this year.

They are really excited about it. Fortunately we have a Junior troop for them to go into this year in Ashville. Unfortunately a Brownie troop in Walnut School does not have a Junior troop to go into. Why? Simple, no leader. When my girls fly up to Junior scouts this year at camp the troop from Walnut will be asking the same question Why? This isn't the only problem in that school this year, without an answer to this letter if the troop organizer goes into that school with applications for scouting next year, after telling them about all the fun and activities they will be into, she'll have to end up with "if we can find a leader." So you can see if we do go into the school and can't find a leader or co-leader there will be a lot of disappointed girls.

I want to add that Walnut School is the most desperate for some leaders and co-leaders but if the turnout is as good as the response gotten at the Ashville School we will also need more help here.

I am optimistic enough to believe you aren't aware of the shortage; that if you knew, you would volunteer. The only qualification is the desire to work with girls. There is no age limit.

If you want to know more about being a leader or co-leader please give me a call. It would mean so much and be sincerely appreciated.

Thank You,

I understand completely the temptation to read your chart. I do not support the right or the bad judgment of the resident to "take your head off" simply because you could not resist the temptation.

With my own patients in the hospital I have no fixed rule. There are some patients who can accept every aspect of their illness, the results of blood examinations and X-rays and clearly understand their meanings.

There are others who become terrorized by the sight of an electrocardiogram reading or by the unimportant notations on their charts. For them, it serves no health benefit to acquaint them with every detail on their charts.

Is a hearing aid more effective if it fits behind the ear than if it's worn inside the ear or in eyeglasses?

— Mrs. G.T., W.Va.

Dear Mrs. T.:
A great many people make the mistake of purchasing a hearing aid because it is tiny, hidden and inconspicuous.

This concession to vanity brings disappointment if it is found that it just doesn't help their hearing.

A hearing aid is effective when it increases serviceable hearing in all social circumstances. That is the most important aspect of the purchase of a hearing aid. Sometimes one that is very tiny may not be as effective as a larger one. Those who are seeking to increase their ability to hear must not succumb to a sales pitch of "tiny" and "inconspicuous." Sometimes they do the job. But sometimes a larger type will prove more helpful.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE: While The Herald encourages open comments from its readers, the opinions expressed are not necessarily those of the management. Letters to the editor must be signed and should be of 300 words or less.

Dear Editor:
I am writing to inform the public of the urgent need for Girl Scout leaders and co-leaders.

I am a Brownie leader in Ashville and I can tell you from experience that if you have the time, being involved in Scouting is a very rewarding experience. The girls in Scouting love it. The willingness to learn is fantastic. I have three Brownies who will "fly-up" to juniors this year.

They are really excited about it. Fortunately we have a Junior troop for them to go into this year in Ashville. Unfortunately a Brownie troop in Walnut School does not have a Junior troop to go into. Why? Simple, no leader. When my girls fly up to Junior scouts this year at camp the troop from Walnut will be asking the same question: Why? This isn't the only problem in that school this year, without an answer to this letter if the troop organizer goes into that school with applications for scouting next year, after telling them about all the fun and activities they will be into, she'll have to end up with "if we can find a leader." So you can see if we do go into the school and can't find a leader or co-leader there will be a lot of disappointed girls.

I want to add that Walnut School is the most desperate for some leaders and co-leaders but if the turnout is as good as the response gotten at the Ashville School we will also need more help here.

I am optimistic enough to believe you aren't aware of the shortage; that if you know, you would volunteer. The only qualification is the desire to work with girls. There is no age limit.

If you want to know more about being a leader or co-leader please give me a call. It would mean so much and be sincerely appreciated.

Thank You,
KATHY STEVENS

Plan Meet On UAW Reaffiliation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The United Auto Workers union has made tentative plans for a special fall convention to decide whether the 1.4-million member organization should reaffiliate with the AFL-CIO.

But opposition to a re-merger with the labor federation runs high within the nation's largest industrial union, and UAW leaders say they won't assemble a convention unless anti-reaffiliation attitudes abate.

Approval of the special conclave came Thursday as 6,000 delegates to the UAW's national convention concluded their five-day meeting.

That issue was the most controversial to come before the convention, which otherwise was a model of unity and harmony.

The late UAW president Walter Reuther led his union out of the AFL-CIO in 1968 because of personal and political differences with federation president George Meany, whom Reuther regarded as too conservative on domestic and foreign policies.

In the past year, however, both Leonard Woodcock, just retired UAW president, and his newly elected successor, Douglas Fraser, have pushed for reaffiliation in the name of a united American labor front.

UAW officials — those on the international executive board as well as those holding local office — are sharply divided on the issue.

Local leaders say they prize the political independence they have enjoyed during the past nine years and fear a loss of autonomy if they return to the AFL-CIO.

Dragonflies Fight Mosquito Plague

SCARBOROUGH, Maine (AP) — Scarborough Downs is putting its money on dragonflies to beat back pesky mosquitoes that torment railbirds at the harness racing track just south of Portland.

Five thousand immature dragonflies were released this week around the track and the nearby swampy lowlands.

The southern Maine towns of Ogunquit and Wells successfully used dragonflies, rather than pesticides, last year to fight mosquitoes.

Roger D. Smith, Scarborough Downs general manager, said he liked the idea and ordered some dragonflies from a biological supply company.

The immature dragonfly or nymph can eat about 3,000 mosquito larvae an hour, while a adult dragonfly can gobble up twice its weight in mosquitoes an hour.

Ohio's pioneer farmer was fortunate in that he could pole his flatboat up the Muskingum, the Scioto, the Hocking, or the Miami, and reap a good harvest from the fertile bottom lands, then send out his produce in the same manner. — AP

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The expectations of a balanced budget by 1981 are based in part on the administration's assumption that business capital outlays will grow at a rate of 9 or 10 per cent a year for four or five years.

A casual reader — or to be blunt, the disinterested ordinary citizen — might not pay too much attention to that assumption. He or she probably wants a balanced budget, but not the explanation.

But in this case the assumption in itself is interesting. Except for the 1962-1966 period, nobody seems able to recall when such a level of business spending was achieved before.

Even Charles L. Schultze, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, concedes the assumption "is an ambitious objective." Not overly ambitious, he said in answer to a newsman's question. Just ambitious, he said.

It is probably based also in a good deal of hope.

Nobody can say that the next few years won't turn out to be as economically vigorous as were those years in the 1960s, when we didn't have so many environmental and other considerations thwarting capital spending.

The next few years might indeed produce a renewal of confidence by business investors in plants and equipment. But the signs aren't that clear right now.

For the past two years capital commitments haven't been anywhere near 9 to 10 per cent. Business people have been uncertain, unwilling to design expansion plans. They complain about the lack of incentives.

Month after month the statistics watchers waited for the latest indicators, and the figures almost always disappointed. The ruffle of business spending just wasn't heard. Perhaps a few rat-a-tats, but little more.

But now, Schultze seemed to say in an address this week to the New York Financial Writers, business is ready to go on a spending parade, and a very long one too. He might be right; he might be wrong. Nobody can say.

What is obvious is that spending cannot be postponed forever, and that some industries seem finally to be making their moves. A McGraw-Hill survey of spending plans suggests a hefty 18 per cent rise — inflation included — this year.

While the survey findings were greeted with joy by those who had waited so long for good news, they were as quickly criticized as exaggerated by those who have seen too many false signals over the past two years.

Even Business Week, a McGraw-Hill publication, commented that "all through the present recovery, companies have shown a perverse tendency to spend far less than they plan — reversing the usual recovery pattern in which actual outlays often exceed earlier projections."

Even when discounted for inflation, an 18 per cent rise would be better than the level sought by Schultze. But then the McGraw-Hill people blow a sour note: next year they expect a rise of only 5 per cent — zero with inflation eliminated.

At this point in the economic cycle, very few economists are willing to project such a strong level of capital outlays over so prolonged a period as is the administration.

Schultze, and presumably other economic advisers in the administration, then use this rate of growth in outlays to set some of the more important targets, such as the level of employment.

And the economic projections of which the capital spending expectations are a part, said Schultze in his talk here, "provides the basis for developing our budgetary plans for 1978 and beyond."

And "beyond" includes a balanced budget by 1981.

They'll Do It Every Time

THE WORK YOU EXPECTED TO COST A LOT TURNS OUT TO BE VERY REASONABLE...

LEGAL NOTICE

OHIO DEPARTMENT OF ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES
CETA TITLE VI PROJECTS

The Office of Manpower Development is requesting project proposals for manpower programs under Title VI of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973 (CETA). Employment and training opportunities would be offered under these projects, primarily to the long-term unemployed or AFDC recipients and whose family incomes are 70 per cent or less of the lower living standard income level. Participants must be certified by the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services and must meet certain eligibility criteria. Special consideration for enrollment should be given to Veterans and CETA Title I participants. All opportunities will be made available without regard to race, creed, color, national origin, sex, age, handicap, political affiliation, or beliefs. Projects are to have a public service objective, result in a specific product or accomplishment, and shall only be in addition to employment which would otherwise be funded without assistance under this Act. Top priority will be given to projects designed to assist in the recovery from weather and energy-related crises experienced this year, or to projects designed to relieve such possible emergencies during the next winter season. Projects are to run from August 15, 1977, or thereafter, to September 30, 1978, not exceeding one year. See below listing for allowable dollar size for projects in each county. Any individual or organization may submit a proposal. However, the regulations disallow the funding of a program which would produce profit for the contractor. The geographic area served is the EMSC Area No. 6 which includes Fairfield, Fayette, Madison, Pickaway, Ross, and Union counties. Proposal packages may be requested from Susan Pfeister, Titles II and VI Field Representative or Douglas B. Martin, Special Planner, The Office of Manpower Development, 30 East Broad St., 27th Floor, Columbus, Ohio 43215 at (614) 466-8297 or 1-(606) 292-1060 (toll-free). Proposals must be submitted in triplicate on the form provided by request on or before May 21, 1977. These are to be sent to Douglas B. Martin at the same address.

Prayer Antidote For Snake's Bite

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago I married my high school sweetheart. A week later I lost my job. Then I heard that the Alaska pipe line paid $12.80 an hour, with plenty of overtime (time and a half and double on Sundays.)

My wife and I decided that I should go, and I'd send her all I could save to be deposited to a joint bank account. In eight months she banked $16,000. She wanted to buy a home, so I agreed.

When I returned at the year's end, she'd bought a home all right! But it was in HER name, and she had another man living with her. What an explosion! Bidding them adieu amidst blows and broken furniture, I returned to Alaska.

That was nearly three years ago. Since then I've banked $87,000. Now comes a letter from my wife telling me she has split with her boyfriend, and through a "legal technicality" HE has gained possession of "our home" and she needs money to protect "our" property.

Abby, you don't have to tell me not to send her any money, but please tell me how to forget a wife I know is poison, but thinks of all day and dream of all night.

I know I need legal advice, but I also need an antibiotic for the love bug. Help me.

JOE IN FAIRBANKS

DEAR JOE: You don't need an antibiotic for an insect bite-you need an antidote for a snakebite. Drive thoughts of HER out of your mind with thoughts of HIM. And when the going gets rough, pray for strength to get you through the day. The Lord never gives us a heavier burden than we can carry.

DEAR ABBY: Ever since I can remember I've wanted to be an airline stewardess. I am now 19 and have been told by some people that I am too tall to be a stewardess. I am 5 feet 11. Is that too tall?

I'm attractive and intelligent. Can you help me?

TALL IN N.Y.

DEAR TALL: Each airline has its own regulations. Write to the airlines of your choice and inquire.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 12-year-old girl who is able to cook a whole meal alone if I need to. I am surprised at the number of girls my age who don't know anything about cooking or housekeeping.

Recently a girlfriend was at my house, and I asked her to help me peel some potatoes. She said she had never peeled a potato in her life. Isn't that ridiculous, Abby? She was my age.

My mother started teaching me to cook when I was 9. Please tell mothers to teach their daughters how to cook and keep house when they are young so they will be prepared when they are older.

Control Of Submerged Weed May Require Herbicides

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Each year, many Ohio pond owners find water weeds growing below the surface of the water. These weeds may restrict some uses that can be made of the pond, and should be removed, says Tom Stockdale, Extension Wildlife Specialist at The Ohio State University.

Some of these water weeds are loosely and some are firmly rooted, explains Stockdale. Others appear to be suspended fragments or clusters. Some have a few leaves that float on the surface while many blossom and produce seed on a stem that extends above the water surface. This general group is referred to as submerged weeds, says Stockdale. They thrive in clear, calm shallow waters.

Many species of submerged weeds are found in Ohio ponds. The common kinds include the large family of pondweeds or Potamogetons, coontail or Geratophyllum, water milfoil or Myriophyllum, water weeds or Elodea and Najas.

Although fertilization may control some pond weeds, it has not been very successful in Ohio for the control of submerged weeds, the specialist says. An exception to this may be in strong spring-fed ponds and above-ground reservoirs where water remains very clear throughout the year.

There are three general types of herbicides formulated for the control of submerged weeds, says Stockdale. These are liquids, wettable powders that are mixed with water, and granules. The active ingredient in the liquid and wettable powder forms is immediately available, whereas, the granular forms release the active ingredient slowly as the clay granule breaks down. Granular herbicides are best suited for application early in the growing season and for spot treating. The liquid forms may be used through mid-summer. There is presently no aquatic herbicide approved for submerged weed control that does not place some restriction on the use of the treated water.

There are many herbicides on the market today that carry label recommendations for the control of submerged weeds, and new products are being introduced all the time. Therefore, it is impossible to discuss each of these. Several of the most common will be discussed. Stockdale suggests visiting your local agricultural chemical dealer to see what he has available. Each container will carry on the label complete instructions for the herbicide's use, a list of weeds it will control, application rates, precautions and restrictions.

Read all labels completely and select the one that best fits your needs and the equipment that you have for applying it, Stockdale urges.

Illustrations of some of the more common submerged weeds are available at the County Extension Office. They should help pond owners identify most pond weed problems.

Endothal — This herbicide is available in disodium and dipotassium salt formulations and in both liquid and granular forms. Endothal is a contact weed killer and is most effective in waters 65 degrees F and above. It will control most of the common submerged weeds that occur in Ohio except Chara. Liquid forms are mixed with water and sprayed on the water surface. Granular forms are best applied with a "cyclone"-type spreader. Tables for determining amounts required, application instructions and precautions are included on the product labels. READ THE LABEL.

Diquat — This herbicide is available in liquid form. It can be applied by pouring directly from the container while moving slowly over the water surface in a boat. For best results, it should be applied before weed growth has reached the surface. It is effective on most common submerged weeds occurring in Ohio ponds except Chara. Diquat should not be applied in muddy water. The label of this herbicide carries complete directions for its use as well as precautions and limitations on uses of water that has been treated.

Granular 2,4-D — There are many formulations of the herbicide. It is easily applied using a cyclone-type spreader, and for best results, it should be applied to coincide with rapid growth of the root systems of submerged weeds. This herbicide is effective on most common submerged weeds occurring in Ohio ponds except Chara. Read the label carefully for application rates and precaution.

Simazine — A formulation of this product labeled for aquatic weed control is available. It has label recommendations for the control of both submerged weeds and algae. An unusual characteristic of the herbicide is that it should be used before water temperature exceeds 75 degree F. As with the other aquatic herbicides, manufacturers print complete instructions and precautions on the label of this product.

Warning — Many of the herbicides recommended for submerged weed control are toxic; however, all are safe for use in ponds stocked with fish unless otherwise stated on the label. Each has a different restriction on the use of the treated water, so read the entire label on the herbicide you select before applying it.

Although non-injurious to fish when applied at the recommended rates, herbicides can still contribute to a fish kill. If large quantities of floating or submerged weeds are killed at one time, there subsequent decomposition can result in an oxygen deficiency and the death of fish from suffocation. To reduce the hazard of such a fish kill, treat weeds early in the growing season and where more than half of the pond is covered with weeds, treat one half of the pond and wait 10 to 14 days before treating the other half.

When applying herbicides along shorelines or spot treating weed beds, it is safer for the fish if applications are started along the shoreline or in the shallowest area and applied out to the deeper water — This enables fish to move into deeper water to escape the chemical.

Inert Dye — A slightly different approach to the control of submerged weeds and filamentous algae before it floats to the surface is by coloring the water with an inert dye. Such coloring decreases the depth of light penetration and shades out weeds.

Stockdale suggests that more information about control of ponds weeds and pond management are available from the County Extension Service.

Trade names — References to commercial products or tradenames are for educational purposes only. The Ohio Cooperative Extension Service does not assume any responsibility, intends no discrimination or endorsement of these listings. Use only approved and registered weed control herbicides.

And So It Grows

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Plants deficient in iron could get that way from a combination of causes or from just one cause, say Extension specialists at The Ohio State University.

First, iron is necessary for the formation of chlorophyll, which is responsible for the green color in plants and is the source of plant food and energy. When the amount of iron available to plants is not enough for normal growth, leaves become pale green, yellow or white and eventually brown, particularly between the veins. Severely affected plants fail to grow, flower or fruit and may die from lack of iron.

Iron chlorosis occurs most often in pin oak, white oak, red maple, roses, azalea, rhododendron and sweet gum.

The causes may be more than one or just one. Often, the condition is due to high pH, which makes it possible for other elements to interfere with the absorption of iron, rather than a lack of iron in the soil. This occurs in soils with pH values of 7.0 or above. So, it is important that you get your soil tested if you are not sure of the pH level. Your County Extension Agent has information for taking soil samples and where to send them.

On the other hand, chlorosis may be caused by actual deficiency of iron or by application of excessive amounts of lime or phosphate to certain soils. It may be caused by overwatering, poor drainage or high levels of certain elements in the soil such as manganese, copper or zinc.

You must check out all the possible causes before you can correct them.

The pH in central and western Ohio is quite often above 7.0. To control this, annually lower the pH by applying soil ammonium sulfate, aluminum sulfate or sulfur. Ammonium sulfate is used at the rate of 10 pounds per 1000 square feet of area and sulfur at 25 pounds per tree.

If the chlorosis is a result of iron deficiency, then iron must be added. The two principal types of iron-containing materials are iron chelates, organic in nature, and inorganic compounds in soluble form such as ferrous sulfate.

Iron chelates, marketed under various trade names and in various formulations, remain available to plants when placed in the soil in the root area. Ferrous sulfate can be applied to the soil or foliage, also. For foliar application, use 2 1/2 ounces of ferrous sulfate in 3 gallons of water. Spray foliage thoroughly. This treatment will likely require repeated applications throughout the growing season. To apply sulfate to the soil, use the following rule:

If treatment is made when trees or shrubs are in dormant stage, use one gallon of ferrous sulfate solution (1 pound of ferrous sulfate per gallon of water) for each foot of diameter of the periphery — the area covered by the crown of the tree out to drip line. If treatment is made during growing season, use 1/2 gallon per foot diameter of periphery. Solution can be applied over the surface of the soil, however, it is more effective if holes are drilled and the solution poured in them. Drill holes 3 feet apart around the periphery and deep enough to hold 1/2 to 1 gallon of solution.

Encapsulated ferric ammonium citrate inserted into pin oak trees in a spiral pattern around the base of the trunk is the latest iron chlorosis prevention method. Each treatment will last about 3 years. The small holes caused by drilling and inserting capsules should heal in one season.

Presently, this treatment is recommended for only pin oak.

See Sale Of Tractors On Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although farmers will buy more of some model tractors than they did last year, overall sales this year will decline from 1976, according to industry officials.

The Farm and Industrial Institute estimates that 148,104 tractors will be sold to farmers in 1977, compared with 153,189 in 1976 and 161,145 in 1975.

Officials said that the latest estimate is down from a forecast last January indicating that 1977 sales would total 151,000 tractors.

One reason for the decline is that many farmers in major wheat areas do not expect their incomes to be large enough to support new machinery investment.

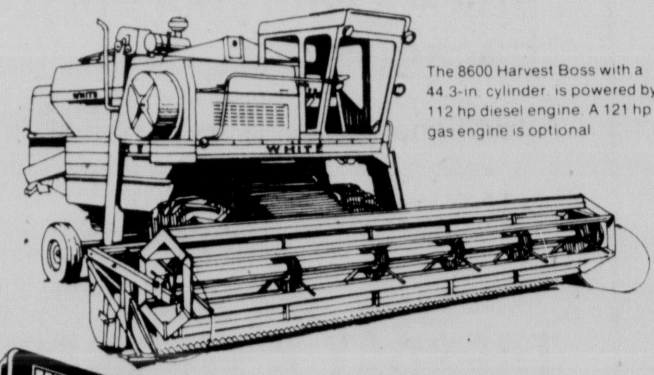

Another is that farmers generally invested heavily in new equipment several years ago when commodity prices were higher.

"This tractor market is characterized by strength in the southern and eastern portions of the United States," the association said.

Some other farm machinery sales expected this year by the institute include: self-propelled combines, 31,000 units, down 4.3 per cent from 1976 sales; hay balers of less than 200-pound capacity, 23,000 units, up 3.2 per cent; balers of over 200 pounds, 12,500 units, up 4.4 per cent; and forage harvesters, 14,500 units, up 9.2 per cent.

Solar energy reaches the earth at the steady rate of five million horsepower per square mile.

4-H...People Helping People

By STEVE BARTELS

County Extension Agent, 4-H

June and the last weeks of the school year bring the planning for summer months. For many Ohio 4-H'ers going to camp will be a part of the vacation days.

Why is camping a part of the youth program of The Ohio State University Cooperative Extension Service? An answer could be the list of objectives of camping. A successful camping experience meets these objectives —

ECONOGRAM

ECONOMIC INFORMATION RELATING TO AGRICULTURE

Employment made a sharp jump upward in April as 546,000 people were added to the employment roles. This resulted in 327,000 fewer people being unemployed and reduced the jobless rate to 7 per cent of the work force, its lowest level since the 6.7 per cent rate in November 1974. Since 1974, unemployment skyrocketed to a high of 9 per cent in May 1975, declined to 7.3 per cent in May of 1976, then climbed back to 8 per cent last November. Most observers expect the unemployment rate to continue on a downward course for the rest of the year, optimistically reaching 6.5 per cent by year's end, if the current economic buoyancy continues.

Inflation sensitivity of federal expenditures study was designed to show "if the inflation rate as measured by the CPI is 1 per cent higher, how many percentage points higher will federal expenditures automatically be in current dollar terms." On the expenditure side all indexed programs have an annual sensitivity of 1.04, and quasi-indexed programs of 1.22 (short run of 2 years) to 3.67 (long run of 3 or more years). Non-indexed programs have a 0 affect. The combined total is 0.71 (short run) to 1.57 (long run). On the income side, personal income taxes have an annual sensitivity rate of 1.55; corporate profits tax, 1.35; social insurance taxes at 1.0; and, other taxes at 0.47. The inflation sensitivity of total receipts on an annual basis in the short run is 1.27 and long run is 1.50. The relationship, in the short run, is that a 10 per cent increase in prices generates a 7.1 per cent current dollar increase in government expenditures and a 12.7 per cent current dollar increase in receipts.

Agricultural credit conditions are characterized by strong demand for loans, slower loan repayments and relatively stable interest rates. Strong loan demand reflects higher prices for machinery and large early-season purchases of seeds, chemicals and fertilizer plus increased demand for crop storage loans. Slower repayments are reflecting lower livestock and grain prices, drought-reduced crop harvests and more grain storage with fewer sales of price-depressed wheat. Major weakness in loan demand has been for feeder cattle. Despite greater total credit demand and slower payback, supply of loanable funds appears to be generally keeping pace. Thus, little impact has yet been felt on interest rates.

Agricultural prices increased 1.5 per cent in the month ending April 15 which pushed the index of prices received by farmers up to 193 per cent of the 1967 average. This is 2 per cent above year ago. Lower prices for wheat, corn, hogs and eggs were more than offset by higher prices for soybeans, potatoes, cattle and calves, lambs and milk. The index of prices paid by farmers for production inputs, services, wages, taxes and other business expenses also increased by 1.5 per cent, but stood at 204 per cent of the 1967 average, 7 per cent above year ago. Primary factors were higher prices for feeder livestock, feed, seed, and building and fencing materials.

Winter wheat crop estimated on May 1 at 1.48 billion bushels from 47.8 million acres with yields at 30.9 bushels. This is 6 per cent less than last year's harvest and well below the record crop of 1.65 billion bushels in 1975. When combined with an expected carry-out of 1.1 billion bushels from the 1976 crop total available supplies are likely to be large enough to continue downward pressure on wheat prices. Winter wheat accounts for about 75 per cent of the total wheat harvest. Recent crop improvement reflects sharply improved moisture conditions in most growing areas during March and April. Ohio crop from 1,500,000 acres with yields estimated at 42 bushels (40 in 1970) would total 63,000,000 bushels or 5 per cent below last year.

growth in an awareness of nature, learning how to live with others, a gain in maturity through understanding oneself, and an encounter with new learning experiences.

Camping offers an opportunity to come closer to nature, to live with each other and grow in an acceptance and understanding of each other, to become aware of one's own position and responsibility in the world, and to discover new things about the world and self.

Camping is a big part of the 4-H program in Pickaway County. Every year over 400 members attend one of the three camps held at Tar Hollow State Park. This year Beginners Camp will be June 7-10, Junior Camp will be June 27-July 1, and Senior Camp will be June 17-20. Camp letters have been mailed to all 4-H members in the county. If you have not returned your camp registration yet better do so today. Camps are beginning to fill up and we don't want you to be excluded. Send in your reservation today and join your friends at Tar Hollow this summer.

Being elected as the safety leader of your 4-H club is an honor that carries a great deal of responsibility. As a safety leader you have the difficult job of pulling together many ideas, making regular reports to your club and planning a club project.

Your goal should be to help your club members, their parents, your advisors and the people in your community practice safety, identify accident hazards, remove hazards and prepare for emergencies.

Lots of materials including pamphlets, slides, and films are available from the County Extension Office. These things cover a variety of safety areas, from the home to the highway.

What should you emphasize in your club's safety program? Think for a moment. What kind of accidents are happening frequently in your community? What has happened recently where someone was injured or killed? Could the accident have been prevented? What can you and your club do about it?

If you can answer these questions, you have taken a big step toward putting together your safety program. Find out who has the information that can help prevent these accidents. It may be the Extension Office, the sheriff or police department, the fire department, someone in your community or maybe you know what could be done.

Talk to the other club members, your parents and advisors to see if your club can do something about it. You'd be surprised what a group of kids can do! Clubs across the country have put on community fire safety programs, provided reflective triangles to "Trick or Treaters", sponsored bicycle safety checks, distributed signs to remind farmers to use chemicals safely, placed stickers on medicine cabinets warning of hazardous drugs and many, many more.

Your club might sponsor hazard hunts, have speakers, show slides or films, emphasize safety with projects, give safety demonstrations as well as community projects.

Your job as safety leader can be very important and rewarding. Put safety first. It's up to you!

Tea is reported to be the most popular beverage — next to water — consumed in the world. The United States is second only to Great Britain in the amount of tea consumed each day.

Tea has been considered a popular beverage for more than 4,000 years, and, in some countries, it is considered a cure-all for many ailments, according to Dr. Evelyn Spindler, Cooperative Extension Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture.

What is this popular, little, dried leaf that grows in the jungles of the world in tropical and sub-tropical climates? It comes from an evergreen plant that belongs to the Camellia family. In Ceylon, the economy is built around the tea business. In India, it is the second highest export earner and more people are employed in this industry than any other.

There are only three different kinds of tea — but, more than 3,000 varieties — all from the same kind of bush. It's what happens after the leaves are picked that makes the different types of tea.

Oxidation turns leaves black which produces a brew with a rich, hearty flavor known as "black tea," the most popular type of tea preferred in America by 97 per cent of the tea-drinkers.

Olong tea is semi-oxidized and it's leaves are partly brown-partly green. When brewed, it produces a light color. Green tea is not oxidized so the leaves stay green in color and remain light when brewed. Most of the teas that we buy are a blend of 20 or 30 varieties.

Instant tea is powder using a highly concentrated brew of tea which is the result of water being removed by a drying process.

The "teabag"—used by one-half the tea-drinkers—was invented in 1904 by a tea merchant who distributed small silk bags of tea in preference to the more-expensive type of original tins. Today, tea bags are made of special filter paper each holding a teaspoon of tea. Loose tea, the classic form of purchasing tea, usually is sold by the pound.

Tea is sold at auction (like tobacco) in this country. It arrives in aluminum foil-lined chests and is placed in bonded warehouses before being approved by the U.S. Board of Tea Exports. (Six people, 5 from industry and 1 from government, who annually set standards each May. If the teas do not meet their standards the tea is not admitted to the United States.)

Tea tasting like wine tasting is considered an art. An expert can identify over 1,500 different teas. "Orange Pekoe" (pronounced p-ko) to some consumers means a certain quality of tea. It is not. It refers to the size of leaf. Other black tea leaf sizes are referred to as Souchong, Fannings and Dust (smallest).

The amount of caffeine, the stimulant found in tea and beverages such as chocolate, cocoa, coffee and colas, in an average cup of tea is about 3/4 of a grain. In coffee it's about 1 1/2 grains. A package of loose tea should make 200 cups of tea and a pound package of coffee makes about 40 cups.

Firm Files Gas Suit

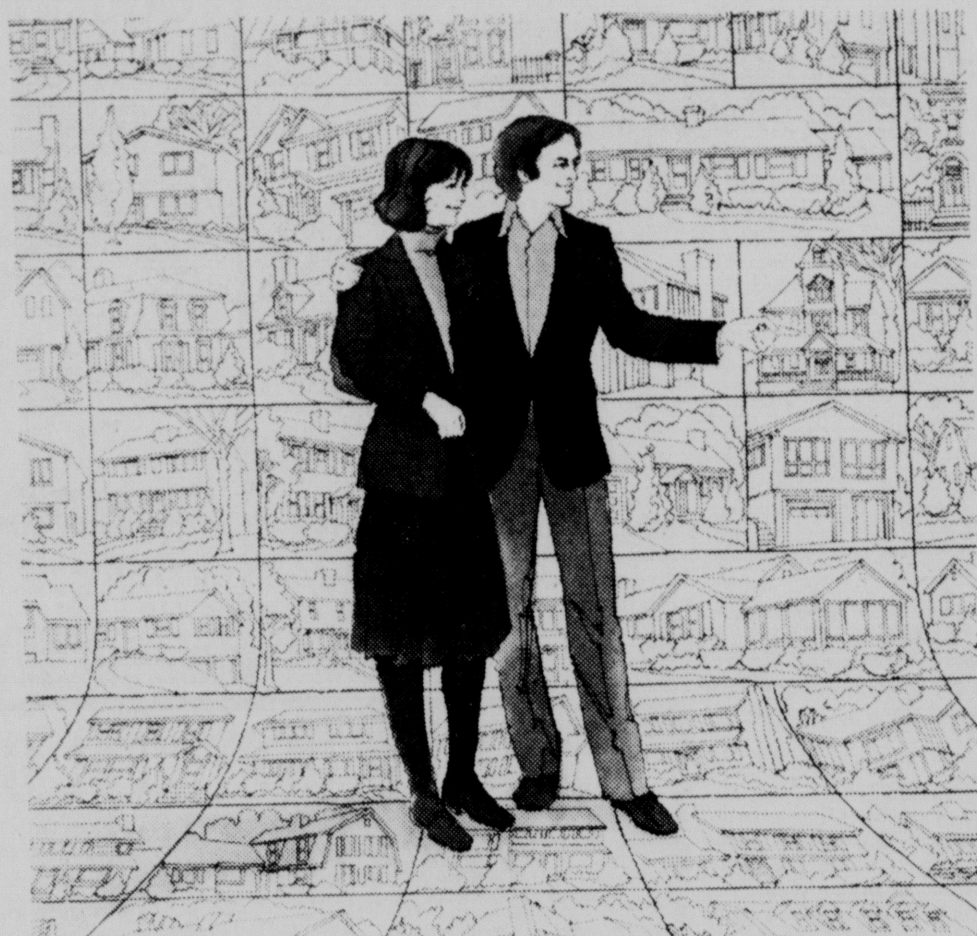

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — The Irwin Auger Bit Co. has filed a $9 million class action suit in Clinton County Common Pleas Court against the Dayton Power and Light Co. alleging misappropriation of propane gas.

Irwin Auger Bit Co., a major manufacturer of wood boring tools, asked the court to impose a trust over DP&L's natural gas holdings and distribute that gas to all customers who claim their propane was unlawfully taken.

Irwin Auger Bit claims DP&L has unlawfully appropriated, and converted to its own use and benefit, propane gas purchased by Irwin Auger Bit and others which was delivered to DP&L in trust.

The suit also claims that the defendant has unjustly profited and enriched itself at the expense of Irwin Auger Bit and the others.

The suit asks that a judgement be awarded to Irwin Auger Bit and others in the amount of $9 million and interest from Nov. 30, 1976.

Tea is reported to be the most popular beverage — next to water — consumed in the world. The United States is second only to Great Britain in the amount of tea consumed each day.

Tea has been considered a popular beverage for more than 4,000 years, and, in some countries, it is considered a cure-all for many ailments, according to Dr. Evelyn Spindler, Cooperative Extension Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture.

What is this popular, little, dried leaf that grows in the jungles of the world in tropical and sub-tropical climates? It comes from an evergreen plant that belongs to the Camellia family. In Ceylon, the economy is built around the tea business. In India, it is the second highest export earner and more people are employed in this industry than any other.

There are only three different kinds of tea — but, more than 3,000 varieties — all from the same kind of bush. It's what happens after the leaves are picked that makes the different types of tea.

Oxidation turns leaves black which produces a brew with a rich, hearty flavor known as "black tea," the most popular type of tea preferred in America by 97 per cent of the tea-drinkers.

Olong tea is semi-oxidized and it's leaves are partly brown-partly green. When brewed, it produces a light color. Green tea is not oxidized so the leaves stay green in color and remain light when brewed. Most of the teas that we buy are a blend of 20 or 30 varieties.

Instant tea is powder using a highly concentrated brew of tea which is the result of water being removed by a drying process.

The "teabag"—used by one-half the tea-drinkers—was invented in 1904 by a tea merchant who distributed small silk bags of tea in preference to the more-expensive type of original tins. Today, tea bags are made of special filter paper each holding a teaspoon of

CLOSE — Jack Nicklaus, enroute to a 4-under par 68 Friday at the Memorial Golf Tournament, Muirfield Golf Course, comes close with this putt while his playing partners

David Graham and Victor Regalado look on. Nicklaus trails co-leaders Gary Player and Jerry McGee by two strokes.

McGee And Player Lead Golf Tourney

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Jerry McGee, the midway leader Friday with Gary Player in the $225,000 Memorial Golf Tournament, issued this warning to writers:

"I hope you guys get used to seeing my ugly face because you're going to see it for four days.

"I don't think I've been so keyed up for a tournament in my life. I've waited 365 days. I want to win this tournament more than any other tournament, including the four majors.

"If this tournament doesn't become a major, then there's no such thing as a major."

The 33-year-old Ohioan, with only one tour victory in his 11 years, is up against one of the game's current greats. And Player, one of four men in history to win the world's four major championships, pronounces he's fit.

"Yes, I really did well enough to shoot a 64. I've been playing well all year. I'm not frustrated. You couldn't have two better days for golf and a better course," said Player.

McGee and Player matched four-under-par 68s in muggy 91-degree heat for 138s over the 7,101-yard Muirfield Village monster, a single shot ahead of Fuzzy Zoeller.

Zoeller forged an eagle and five birdies for a course-tying 67. "I wised up. I only hit five drivers all day," said Zoeller of his performance, the best of this 1977 invitational that carries first prize of $45,000.

Bobby Wadkins, first round coleader with Mark Lye, matched par Friday and shared fourth place at 140 with Jack Nicklaus, the designer, sponsor and star attraction of the second-year event.

"I know if I can beat Nicklaus," said Wadkins, "I can win this tournament."

Rookie Mark Lye, tied with Wadkins with an opening 68, slipped to a 73 and was even with No. 1 money winner Tom Watson at 141. Watson had 70.

Smith, L.A. Whip Pirates, 6-1

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Reggie Smith has found a home—and a home run swing.

"I swing to make contact, not hit home runs," Smith said Friday night after slamming his 11th homer of the season and the eighth in his last 12 games. "But when you make contact, the homers come."

The smooth-fielding Los Angeles right fielder plays seven musical instruments; has owned, trained and shown quarter horses; is a scuba diver, an accomplished chef and an outstanding tennis player. He has sold cars and real estate, and has been a lab assistant in a morgue.

In baseball, he spent the first eight years of his major league career with the Boston Red Sox before being traded to the St. Louis Cardinals amid controversy. He was traded to the Dodgers in mid-season last year, hitting 18 home runs between the two teams.

"I have the power to get the ball out of there," Smith said after his three-run homer into the left field seats led the National League West Division-leading Dodgers to a 6-1 victory over the East Division-leading Pirates.

In other NL games Friday, San Diego clubbed Montreal 12-4, Chicago clobbered Atlanta 13-4, Cincinnati defeated New York 6-2, Houston downed Philadelphia 5-2 and San Francisco outlasted St. Louis 7-5.

Smith's blast highlighted a five-run fifth-inning explosion that handed the Dodgers their 29th victory against 9 defeats.

Burt Hooton, 4-1, who gave up four hits before being relieved in the eighth by Stan Wall, got the victory. Wall was touched for just one hit the rest of the way.

Steve Yeager's solo homer in the third gave the Dodgers a 1-0 lead off Pirate starter Larry Demery, 5-2, who also was charged with all of the Dodger runs.

Cubs 13, Braves 4

Pitcher Ray Burris won his sixth game in 10 outings and joined the fun, smashing his first home run of the season as Chicago posted its 13th victory in 15 games in crushing

Atlanta. The loss snapped Atlanta's four-game winning streak, its longest of the year.

Steve Swisher added a homer and he and Burris each drove in three runs. Burris had a two-run single and Swisher an RBI double as the Cubs sprayed 16 hits.

A bases-loaded homer in the first inning by Mike Ivie started San Diego on its way to an easy victory over Montreal. It was the Expos' 10th straight loss.

Ivie's second homer of the season and his second lifetime grand slam came after the Padres loaded the bases on an error and two walks.

Merv Rettenmund belted a two-run homer for San Diego while Ellis Valentine hit his sixth of the year for Montreal.

Reds 6, Mets 2

Gary Nolan struck out nine in seven innings to increase his record to 3-0 and lead the Cincinnati over New York. Reliever Woody Fryman worked the final two innings as the Reds continued their mastery over Tom Seaver.

Seaver, a four-time 20-game winner, is 10-18 against Cincinnati for his career and suffered his third straight loss after a 4-0 start.

Astros 5, Phillies 2

A two-run double by Julio Gonzalez highlighted Houston's three-run sixth inning as the Astros topped Philadelphia. J.R. Richard, 3-4, scattered seven hits to gain his fourth complete game of the season.

Cliff Johnson's ninth home run of the season, a solo shot into the left field seats in the fourth, gave Houston a 1-0 lead.

Giants 7, Cards 5

Darrell Evans slammed a two-out, two-run double as San Francisco tallied four runs in the ninth inning to down St. Louis.

The victory snapped a four-game Giants losing streak.

With Cards reliever Al Hrabosky, 1-2, on the mound, singles by Darrell Thomas, Bill Madlock and Jack Clark knotted the game at 4-4. Evans then doubled, scoring Madlock and Clark. Jerry Herndon added a RBI single to cap the outburst.

Nordiques Top Jets, 4-2

WINNIPEG (AP) — The Quebec Nordiques got a tremendous output from their top line Friday night and it carried them to a 4-2 victory over the Winnipeg Jets that squared the World Hockey Association playoff final at two victories each.

Game Five will be played Sunday afternoon in Quebec beginning at 1 p.m., EDT.

"Their big line outplayed our big line, it was that simple," said a dejected Winnipeg Coach Bobby Kromm.

The Nordiques' trio of Real Cloutier, Marc Tardif and Chris Bordeleau figured in two of the goals, one on a power play, as they played their best hockey of the final and were a constant threat everytime they stepped on the ice.

"They played a fantastic game," said jubilant Coach Marc Boileau of Quebec. "They played the way they should play...they answered their critics tonight."

Boileau was their main critic after a disappointing showing through the first three games of the best-of-seven series.

Bettenhausen

'On Bubble' In Qualifiers

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "I'll tell you what's going to happen," Gary Bettenhausen confided. "Everybody is going to wait until the last hour of qualifying Sunday to try to outsmart everybody else."

"Half of 'em will get left in line when the gun goes off and a bunch of those who do get out won't go fast enough. That's if the weather doesn't outsmart 'em all and rain."

Bettenhausen's script for the hectic final hour or so of the last qualifying session for the May 29 Indianapolis 500 is based on historical fact.

Every year a handful of cars wait until the last minute to see what speed they have to shoot for or to try and wait out the heat of the afternoon. Invariably, someone is left crying at the line.

Bettenhausen, who came within 18 laps of winning the 1972 500, has a special interest in the final weekend of qualifying for the $1 million speed classic: he is "on the bubble," the slowest driver in the field before qualifying started today.

And he'll be the first to get bumped once the field is full, assuming his 186.596 miles per hour average is still the slowest.

But unless rain falls to wash the grimy surface clean, Bettenhausen's speed looks "safe." A lot safer than it did a week ago when he recorded it.

Twelve spots were still open in the 33-car lineup when time trials opened today. No more than a half dozen or so qualifiers were expected, unless conditions changed drastically. But the weather forecast was dimly redundant: mostly fair, hot, little chance of rain.

Big Inning Gives Tigers 16-1 Victory

A big nine-run first inning put things on ice for the Circleville Tigers as they rolled to a 16-1 win over visiting Hillsboro Friday.

The Tigers swung the heavy timber as they belted the offerings of Tony Trout for 16 hits.

Brad Allison went the distance for the Tigers as he scattered nine hits, walked one and fanned seven.

Mearle Logan started things off in the first when he reached on an error and stole second. Then the roof fell in on Hillsboro when Eric Berger singled, another Indian error, Bo Barthelmas was hit by a pitch, Brett Allen slammed a three-run homer, Allison singled, Joe Mogan reached on an error, Brian Fath singled, Logan was hit by a pitch, Berger singled and Barthelmas rapped a two-run single.

"We played our best game of the year both on offense and defense. I was especially proud of the defense who played errorless ball," Circleville coach Tom Cole stated.

Allen had a homer for the Tigers, Logan a triple, Mogan a double, Berger, Allison, Meena and Alan Ranck each had two singles while Barthelmas and Bob Fuller each had a single.

Circleville is now 8-9 overall, 5-6 in South Central Ohio League action, and will have three home games next week when the Tigers host Bloom Carroll Monday, Westfall Wednesday and Washington C.H. Thursday.

Browns Cut Walt Johnson

BEREA, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Browns placed defensive tackle Walter Johnson on waivers Friday night after the 12-year veteran failed to show up at a spring orientation session.

"We were disappointed that he wouldn't be here while the others are busting their backs, because football is a team game," said Browns' General Manager Peter Hadhazy.

But Hadhazy said that wasn't the only reason the 34-year-old Johnson was being cut.

"There were a number of other factors involved with Walter," he said.

The other factors weren't detailed, but one of them was reported to be the improved health of Earl Edwards, who is expected to be a regular tackle, along with Jerry Sherk, this year.

Edwards was hampered by a leg injury after being acquired from the Buffalo Bills last year.

That would leave Johnson in a part-time role while drawing a big salary.

The Browns had tried to work out a trade for Johnson before the National Football League draft, but found no takers.

TV Junior High Sets Spring Sports Fete

Teays Valley Junior High will hold a Spring Sports Banquet for seventh and eighth graders 7 p.m. Thursday at the high school cafeteria.

It will be an all sports banquet honoring athletes, cheerleaders, managers, scorekeepers and statisticians.

It will be a carry-in dinner and everyone is requested to bring two dishes and their own table service. Beverages will be furnished by the Booster Club.

Pawtucket Slams Richmond; Wins 11-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pawtucket slammed Richmond 11-3 with the help of 16 hits from Ted Cox, Wayne Harer and Jack Baker in International League baseball action.

Four of the runs were driven in by Cox's two-run homer and two-run double. Harer singled twice and drove in two runs and then Baker scored two on two singles and a double.

In another game Friday, the Charleston Charlies beat the Tidewater Tides 3-1. Third baseman Larry Wolfe drove in all three runs for the winners. Roy Thomas relieved Charleston starter Mike Stanton after Stanton's hand was brushed by a line-drive in the second inning. Thomas blanked the Tides the rest of the way.

Whitworth Golf Leader

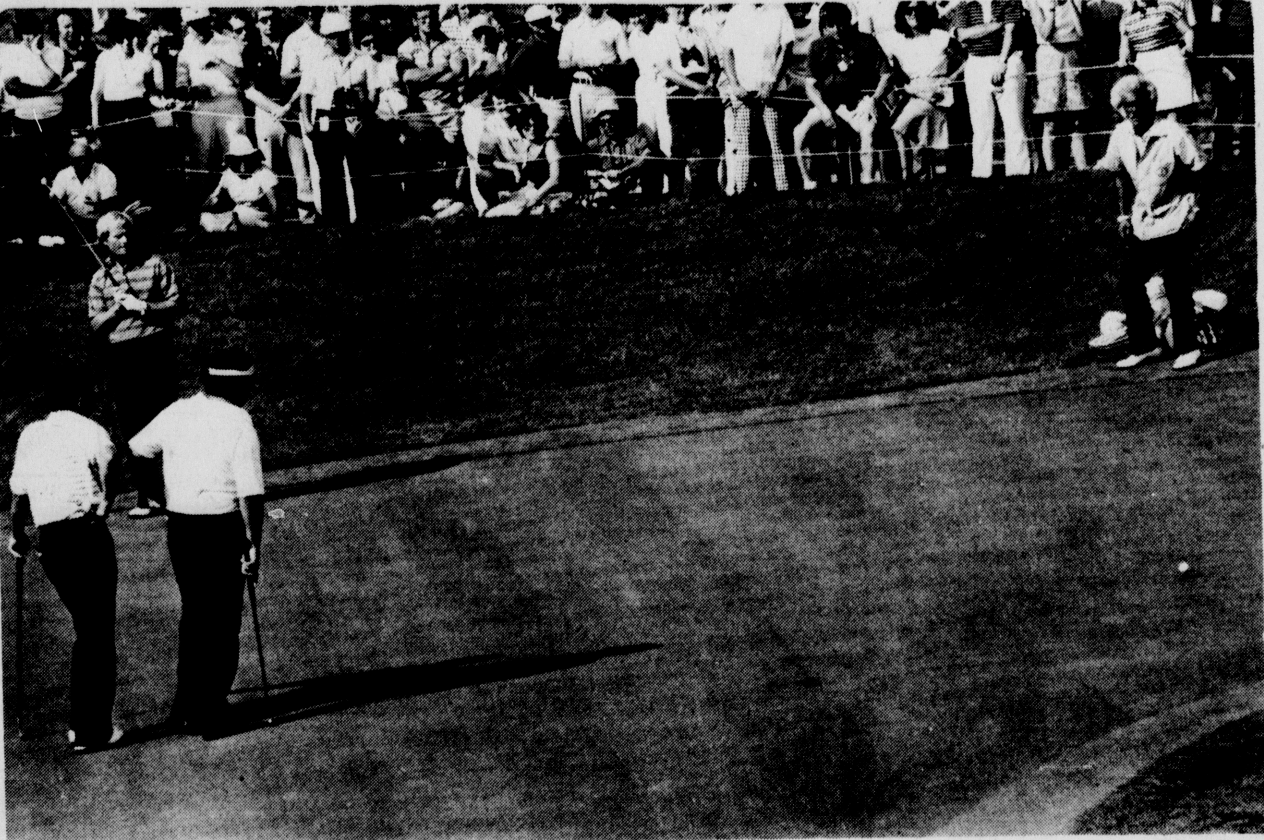

JAMESBURG, N.J. (AP) — Kathy Whitworth, at 37, says she's not a "young chicken" anymore and isn't pressing to continue as the top money winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

But try telling that to the five younger players who trail her by a stroke heading into today's second round of the $77,000 LPGA Classic at the 6,056-yard Forsgate Country Club.

Miss Whitworth, an 18-year tour veteran, fired a four-under-par 67 Friday to take a one-stroke lead over Sandra Palmer, Sylvia Bertolaccini, JoAnne Carner, Pat Bradley and Sandra Post.

Miss Whitworth made two birdies and seven pars on her first nine holes of play and threatened to break her career-low round of 65 when she birdied the first two holes coming back by dropping eight-foot putts.

Miss Palmer played the steadiest round of the five bunched in second place, stroking 15 pars and three birdies while staying away from the course's deep bunkers and thick rough. Misses Bradley, Carner and Bertolaccini had five birdies and two bogeys each. Miss Austin had a 68 with six birds and three bogeys.

CLOSE — Jack Nicklaus, enroute to a 4-under par 68 Friday at the Memorial Golf Tournament, Muirfield Golf Course, comes close with this putt while his playing partners

David Graham and Victor Regalado look on. Nicklaus trails co-leaders Gary Player and Jerry McGee by two strokes.

McGee And Player Lead Golf Tourney

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Jerry McGee, the midway leader Friday with Gary Player in the $225,000 Memorial Golf Tournament, issued this warning to writers:

"I hope you guys get used to seeing my ugly face because you're going to see it for four days.

"I don't think I've been so keyed up for a tournament in my life. I've waited 365 days. I want to win this tournament more than any other tournament, including the four majors.

"If this tournament doesn't become a major, then there's no such thing as a major."

The 33-year-old Ohioan, with only one tour victory in his 11 years, is up against one of the game's current greats. And Player, one of four men in history to win the world's four major championships, pronounces he's fit.

"Yes, I really did well enough to shoot a 64. I've been playing well all year. I'm not frustrated. You couldn't have two better days for golf and a better course," said Player.

McGee and Player matched four-under-par 68s in muggy 91-degree heat for 138s over the 7,101-yard Muirfield Village monster, a single shot ahead of Fuzzy Zoeller.

Zoeller forged an eagle and five birdies for a course-tying 67. "I wised up. I only hit five drivers all day," said Zoeller of his performance, the best of this 1977 invitational that carries first prize of $45,000.

Bobby Wadkins, first round coleader with Mark Lye, matched par Friday and shared fourth place at 140 with Jack Nicklaus, the designer, sponsor and star attraction of the second-year event.

"I know if I can beat Nicklaus," said Wadkins, "I can win this tournament."

Rookie Mark Lye, tied with Wadkins with an opening 68, slipped to a 73 and was even with No. 1 money winner Tom Watson at 141. Watson had 70.

Smith, L.A. Whip Pirates, 6-1

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Reggie Smith has found a home — and a home run swing.

"I swing to make contact, not hit home runs," Smith said Friday night after slamming his 11th homer of the season and the eighth in his last 12 games. "But when you make contact, the homers come."

The smooth-fielding Los Angeles right fielder plays seven musical instruments; has owned, trained and shown quarter horses; is a scuba diver, an accomplished chef and an outstanding tennis player. He has sold cars and real estate, and has been a lab assistant in a morgue.

In baseball, he spent the first eight years of his major league career with the Boston Red Sox before being traded to the St. Louis Cardinals amid controversy. He was traded to the Dodgers in mid-season last year, hitting 18 home runs between the two teams.

"I have the power to get the ball out of there," Smith said after his three-run homer into the left field seats led the National League West Division-leading Dodgers to a 6-1 victory over the East Division-leading Pirates.

In other NL games Friday, San Diego clubbed Montreal 12-4, Chicago clobbered Atlanta 13-4, Cincinnati defeated New York 6-2, Houston downed Philadelphia 5-2 and San Francisco outlasted St. Louis 7-5.

Smith's blast highlighted a five-run fifth-inning explosion that handed the Dodgers their 29th victory against 9 defeats.

Burt Hooton, 4-1, who gave up four hits before being relieved in the eighth by Stan Wall, got the victory. Wall was touched for just one hit the rest of the way.

Steve Yeager's solo homer in the third gave the Dodgers a 1-0 lead off Pirate starter Larry Demery, 5-2, who also was charged with all of the Dodger runs.

Cubs 13, Braves 4
Pitcher Ray Burris won his sixth game in 10 outings and joined the fun, smashing his first home run of the season as Chicago posted its 13th victory in 15 games in crushing

Atlanta. The loss snapped Atlanta's four-game winning streak, its longest of the year.

Steve Swisher added a homer and he and Burris each drove in three runs. Burris had a two-run single and Swisher an RBI double as the Cubs sprayed 16 hits.

A bases-loaded homer in the first inning by Mike Ivie started San Diego on its way to an easy victory over Montreal. It was the Expos' 10th straight loss.

Ivie's second homer of the season and his second lifetime grand slam came after the Padres loaded the bases on an error and two walks.

Merv Rettenmund belted a two-run homer for San Diego while Ellis Valentine hit his sixth of the year for Montreal.

Reds 6, Mets 2
Gary Nolan struck out nine in seven innings to increase his record to 3-0 and lead the Cincinnati over New York. Reliever Woody Fryman worked the final two innings as the Reds continued their mastery over Tom Seaver.

Seaver, a four-time 20-game winner, is 10-18 against Cincinnati for his career and suffered his third straight loss after a 4-0 start.

Astros 5, Phillies 2
A two-run double by Julio Gonzalez highlighted Houston's three-run sixth inning as the Astros topped Philadelphia. J.R. Richard, 3-4, scattered seven hits to gain his fourth complete game of the season.

Cliff Johnson's ninth home run of the season, a solo shot into the left field seats in the fourth, gave Houston a 1-0 lead.

Giants 7, Cards 5
Darrell Evans slammed a two-out, two-run double as San Francisco tallied four runs in the ninth inning to down St. Louis.

The victory snapped a four-game Giants losing streak.

With Cards reliever Al Hrabosky, 1-2, on the mound, singles by Darrell Thomas, Bill Madlock and Jack Clark knotted the game at 4-4. Evans then doubled, scoring Madlock and Clark. Jerry Herndon added a RBI single to cap the outburst.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Ernest Weaver who passed away May 21, 1976. God watched you as you suffered. He knew you had your share. He gently closed your weary eyes, and took you in his care. Your memory is our keepsake, with that we will never part. God has you in his keeping. We have you in our hearts. We all love and miss you. Sadly missed by Wife and Family.

1. Card of Thanks

I wish to thank all my friends and relatives for their flowers and gifts and notes. Also Pastor Zehner for his prayers and visits while I was in the hospital. Mrs. Thomas Dewey.

May I take this way to thank all of those who sent the many cards, flowers and gifts to me while I was a patient in Riverside Hospital. I so enjoyed the phone calls from my invalid sister, Dora Ross. Thanks to the Pastors Lehman, Summers and Hardman for their visits and prayers. The visits of others and a special thanks to my wonderful family for their many long trips to visit me during having spent all day in their positions. They also saw to it that I had a delightful Mother's Day. Thanks loads to all for making my stay much easier. Mrs. George Maxson

In loving memory of Ernest Weaver who passed away May 21, 1976. God watched you as you suffered. He knew you had your share. He gently closed your weary eyes, and took you in his care. Your memory is our keepsake, with that we will never part. God has you in his keeping. We have you in our hearts. We all love and miss you. Sadly missed by Wife and Family.

1. Card of Thanks

I wish to thank all my friends and relatives for their flowers and gifts, and notes. Also Pastor Zehner for his prayers and visits while I was in the hospital. Mrs. Thomas Dewey.

May I take this way to thank all of those who sent the many cards, flowers and gifts to me while I was a patient in Riverside Hospital. I so enjoyed the phone calls from my invalid sister, Dora Ross.

Thanks to the Pastors Lehman, Summers and Hardman for their visits and prayers. The visits of others and a special thanks to my wonderful family for their many long trips to visit me after having spent all day in their positions. They also saw to it that I had a delightful Mother's Day.

Thanks loads to all for making my stay much easier. Mrs. George Maxson

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

FOR SUNDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Not a good day in which to mix business with pleasure. Rosy promises made in an atmosphere of congeniality could prove deceptive.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Those "best things in life" are still free for the takers. Salute this auspicious day with hope, vigor and enthusiasm for your most worthwhile interests.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): If the past week put a drain on nerves or stamina, ease up to recoup energies. Hopes will brighten, too. You have the ability to combat fatigue surprisingly well.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Several useful ideas may come to you now, but not the opportunity to apply them immediately. Be patient and don't try to get ahead of yourself.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): What you expect may not be what you receive - and may be for the best, without your realizing it. Emphasize your gracious, amenable side: It wins friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): A day calling for calmness and good judgment. Do not let unexpected situations ruffle you and don't let yourself be pushed into undesirable "corners."

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): You may think you have a project under control, rolling briskly. Better take another look for hidden flaws - anything that could mean time, energy lost.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): You may make a new acquaintance or renew an old friendship. Look for those "small" blessings and gains so often belittled. They could make your day!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Everything seems to conspire to engender optimism and confidence. You should have a most interesting and inspiring day.

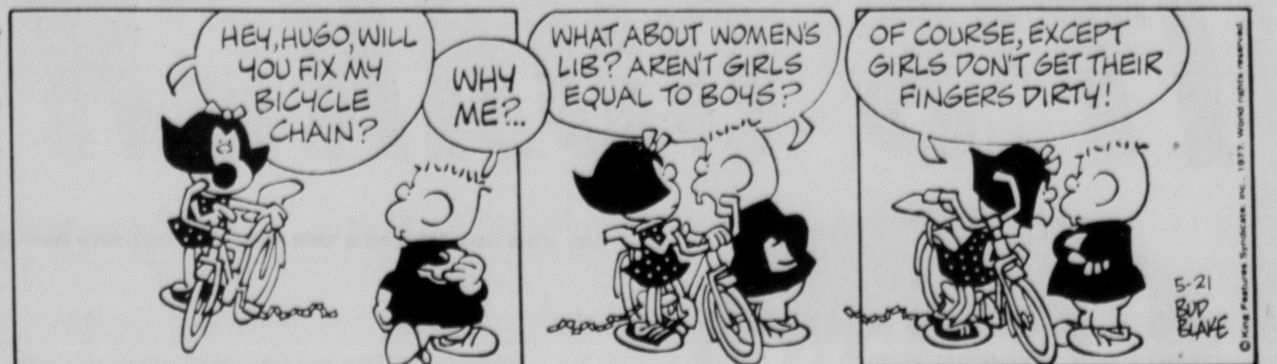

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Neither renege on promises nor attempt too much. There are tendencies toward both now. Accept only what your better sense recognizes as suited to the day and your purposes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Don't depart abruptly from a well-planned schedule, except where emergency so requires. Road may be bumpy in part, but rewards will be sweeter.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Don't go against present trends or you may find yourself completely out of step with others. Some of your future objectives are now taking shape.

YOU BORN TODAY have an alert, inquiring mind; are usually physically dexterous, too. However, your temperament, at times, is too explosive for stability, so you MUST learn to control nerves and temper. You are an idealist, a deep thinker, and are endowed with the talents required to succeed in music, painting and writing. You are usually working on several things at one time and, if you do not take up one of the arts as a career, you will almost surely take up one as a hobby or avocation. Clever and ingenious, you would make an excellent inventor, scientist or engineer. If you choose business as a career, your best field would be real estate. Birthdate of: Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, novelist (creator of "Sherlock Holmes"); Richard Wagner, Ger. composer.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
I S L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth Sign.

FOR SUNDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Not a good day in which to mix business with pleasure. Rosy promises made in an atmosphere of congeniality could prove deceptive.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Those "best things in life" are still free for the takers. Salute this auspicious day with hope, vigor and enthusiasm for your most worthwhile interests.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): If the past week put a drain on nerves or stamina, ease up to recoup energies. Hopes will brighten, too. You have the ability to combat fatigue surprisingly well.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Several useful ideas may come to you now, but not the opportunity to apply them immediately. Be patient and don't try to get ahead of yourself.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): What you expect may not be what you receive — and may be for the best, without your realizing it. Emphasize your gracious, amenable side: It wins friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): A day calling for calmness and good judgment. Do not let unexpected situations ruffle you and don't let yourself be pushed into undesirable "corners."

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): You may think you have a project under control, rolling briskly. Better take another look for hidden flaws — anything that could mean time, energy lost.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): You may make a new acquaintance or renew an old friendship. Look for those "small" blessings and gains so often belittled. They could make your day!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Everything seems to conspire to engender optimism and confidence. You should have a most interesting and inspiring day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Neither renege on promises nor attempt too much. There are tendencies toward both now. Accept only what your better sense recognizes as suited to the day and your purposes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Don't depart abruptly from a well-planned schedule, except where emergency so requires. Road may be bumpy in part, but rewards will be sweeter.

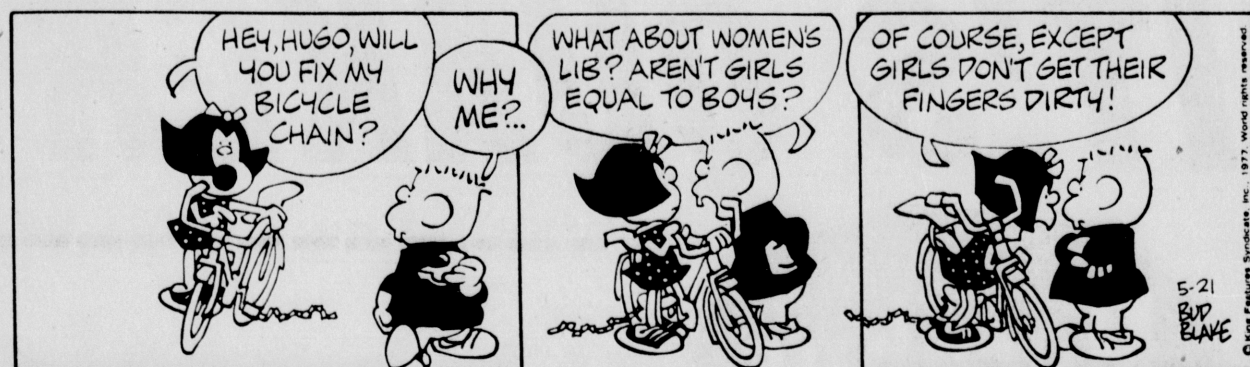

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Don't go against present trends or you may find yourself completely out of step with others. Some of your future objectives are now taking shape.

YOU BORN TODAY have an alert, inquiring mind; are usually physically dexterous, too. However, your temperament, at times, is too explosive for stability, so you MUST learn to control nerves and temper. You are an idealist, a deep thinker, and are endowed with the talents required to succeed in music, painting and writing. You are usually working on several things at one time and, if you do not take up one of the arts as a career, you will almost surely take up one as a hobby or avocation. Clever and ingenious, you would make an excellent inventor, scientist or engineer. If you choose business as a career, your best field would be real estate. Birthdate of: Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, novelist (creator of "Sherlock Holmes"); Richard Wagner, Ger. composer.
